"YOUNG CORBETT," BACK FROM 'FRISCO, SAYS HE LOST $27,000---WILL CARRY REVOLVER HEREAFTER

Carry Revolver Into Ring Hereafter.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

Tork, entered an uptown cafe vesterday afternoon and sat down at a table. He had hardly unfolded his naphin before a friend spied him, rushed up, shook hands and bituted out the question that hands and blurted out the question that of about two minutes ever since he fin-

"Say, Kid, is it true that you got the worst of it on the coast?" Probably the names of people who have asked that question of Corbette would fill a directory, but the little fighter answered as explosively as if the subject were brought up for the mask. The whole thing was arranged in advance-cut and dried. Why, Graney's friend, Jack Sheehan, who never bet ten cents before in his life, put up $1,000 against $4,000 on the plenty of others, too."

Referees, Take Warhing "If I ever get robbed like that again," Corbett went on, "the referee will never errorett went on, "the referee will never set out of the ring alive.
"In my country we shoot stage robbers. A stage robber is a brave man and a gentiuman beside a fellow who will take advantage of a position of trust the way Graney did. Next time I fight I'll carry a six-shooter into my corner, and if I set the kind of a deal I had in 'Frisco I'll shoot the referee dead in the ring."

Corbett Wants to Know.

Here Corbett suddenly displayed his generalship by turning questioner. He wanted to know why newspaper re his private affairs copious columns about his fighting "You fellows have printed a lot of "You fellows have printed a lot of stories about me that don't fit. I want you to put me right. First, I don't drink champagne like a millionaire. I have been taking care of myseif. and I had my last drink of any kind at Saratoga last year. Then there was a lot of talk about my having to use my end of the purse to pay my 'markers' at the track. That's nonsense. I am ahead of the racing game. I didn't owe a cent 'in 'Frisco when the fight came off. I didn't owe anything to the books. In fact, two bookies owed me.

and if I get the kind of a deal I had in Frisco I'll shoot the referee dead in the ring."

With this rither bloodthirsty statement Corbett subsided.

Tou must have been stung," remarked his friend.

"Twenty-seven thousand dollars," replied Corbett. "That is, my party and I came out $17,000 poorer than we would have been if the verdict had gone right. I'm not busted by any means. I've got some left—enough to travel around on and do as I please. I'n not a dead one either. I'm very much alive. I never packed the houses in my theatrical engagements the way they were packed in Boston last week.

This is on Britt.
